

the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals (the “CCA”) refused Martinez’s petition for discretionary review (“PDR”). See Martinez v. State, No. PD-1590-15 (Tex. Crim. App. Apr. 6, 2016). But, as he admits in his amended Section 2254 application, see Dkt. No. 7 at 3-4, Martinez has yet to file a state habeas application concerning this conviction and sentence.

Legal Standards and Analysis

A petitioner must fully exhaust state remedies before seeking federal habeas relief. See 28 U.S.C. § 2254(b)(1)(A). This entails submitting the factual and legal basis of any claim to the highest available state court for review in a procedurally correct manner. See Satterwhite v. Lynaugh, 886 F.2d 90, 92-93 (5th Cir. 1989); see also Nickleson v. Stephens, 803 F.3d 748, 753 (5th Cir. 2015) (“The exhaustion doctrine demands more than allusions in state court to facts or legal issues that might be comprehended within a later federal habeas petition. The exhaustion doctrine is based on comity between state and federal courts, respect for the integrity of state court procedures, and ‘a desire to protect the state courts’ role in the enforcement of federal law.” (quoting Castille v. Peoples, 489 U.S. 346, 349 (1989) (in turn quoting Rose v. Lundy, 455 U.S. 509, 518 (1982)))). In Texas, a prisoner must present his claims to the CCA in a petition for discretionary review or an application for state post-conviction relief. See Bautista v. McCotter, 793 F.2d 109, 110 (5th Cir. 1986).

Under Rule 4 of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases, a district court may summarily dismiss a 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas application “if it plainly appears from the face of the petition and any exhibits annexed to it that the petitioner is not entitled to relief in the district court.” Id.

This rule differentiates habeas cases from other civil cases with respect to sua sponte consideration of affirmative defenses. The district court has the power under Rule 4 to examine and dismiss frivolous habeas petitions prior to any answer or other pleading by the state. This power is rooted in “the duty of the court to screen out frivolous applications and eliminate the burden that would be placed on the respondent by ordering an unnecessary answer.”

Kiser v. Johnson, 163 F.3d 326, 328 (5th Cir. 1999) (quoting 28 U.S.C. foll. § 2254 Rule 4 Advisory Committee Notes); see Rodriguez v. Dretke, No. 5:04-cv-28-C, 2004 WL 1119704, at *1 (N.D. Tex. May 17, 2004) (applying Rule 4 prior to the filing of an answer where this “Court [was] of the opinion that [the petitioner] has failed to exhaust his state court remedies” (citing Kiser)); see also Magouirk v. Phillips, 144 F.3d 348, 357 (5th Cir. 1998) (“[T]here is no doubt that a federal court may raise sua sponte a petitioner’s failure to exhaust state law remedies and apply that doctrine to bar federal litigation of petitioner’s claims until exhaustion is complete.” (citations omitted)); cf. Dispensa v. Lynaugh, 847 F.2d 211, 217 (5th Cir. 1988) (“This requirement, that a petitioner who seeks federal redress must first seek relief in state courts and thus exhaust his state remedies, is not a jurisdictional prerequisite, but a prudential policy based on concerns for federalism.” (citations omitted)).

Although one of the claims in Martinez’s federal habeas application is that his counsel provided constitutionally ineffective assistance, and although it appears that he alleged an ineffective-assistance-of-counsel (“IAC”) claim in his PDR, compare Dkt. No. 7 at 6, with id. at 3, Martinez did not raise an IAC claim on direct appeal, see Martinez, 2015 WL 6750812. And, if he had, such a claim is almost never resolved on direct appeal. In fact, as the United States Supreme Court has observed, “[t]he structure and design of the Texas system in actual operation ... make it ‘virtually impossible’ for an ineffective assistance claim to be presented on direct review.” Trevino v. Thaler, 133 S. Ct. 1911, 1915 (2013) (quoting Robinson v. State, 16 S.W.3d 808, 810-11 (Tex. Crim. App. 2000)); see also id. at 1921 (“the Texas procedural system – as a matter of its structure, design, and operation – does not offer most defendants a meaningful opportunity to present a claim of ineffective assistance of trial counsel on direct appeal”).

Accordingly, Martinez has not afforded the state courts (including the CCA, as the applicable highest state court) the first opportunity to address the substance of the claims he raises in this Court. He therefore has failed to exhaust state court remedies in a procedurally correct manner, and his amended Section 2254 petition should be dismissed without prejudice pursuant to Rule 4.

Recommendation and Direction to the Clerk of Court

Pursuant to Rule 4 of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases, the Court should dismiss Martinez’s amended 28 U.S.C. § 2254 habeas application without prejudice to his right to fully and properly exhaust state court remedies, and also should direct that the Clerk of Court serve any order adopting this recommendation on the Texas Attorney General.

The Clerk of Court is DIRECTED to serve electronically a copy of this recommendation and the petition, along with any attachments thereto and brief in support thereof, on the Texas Attorney General and will be directed to the attention of Edward L. Marshall, Chief, Criminal Appeals Division, Texas Attorney General's Office, Austin, Texas. See RULES GOVERNING SECTION 2254 CASES IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURTS, RULE 4.

A copy of these findings, conclusions, and recommendation shall be served on all parties in the manner provided by law. Any party who objects to any part of these findings, conclusions, and recommendation must file specific written objections within 14 days after being served with a copy. See 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); FED. R. CIV. P. 72(b). In order to be specific, an objection must identify the specific finding or recommendation to which objection is made, state the basis for the objection, and specify the place in the magistrate judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation where the disputed determination is found. An objection that merely incorporates by reference or refers to the briefing before the magistrate judge is not specific. Failure to file specific written objections will bar the aggrieved party from appealing the factual findings and legal conclusions of the magistrate judge that are accepted or adopted by the district court, except upon grounds of plain error. See Douglass v. United Servs. Auto. Ass'n, 79 F.3d 1415, 1417 (5th Cir. 1996).
